Mil. 354 (notices here appears as tolles in BCD).

The reading of Men. 1161 is corrupt, but quingageses (Ba) looks as if it were meant for a numeral adverb. Of the similar adjectives we have centissimum, Capt. 421 (-s B, D, E, -ss- J, O), Mil. 763 (-s B, C, D) and utensimum, Capt. 980 (-ns- B, E).

IV.—VERBS AND ADVERBS.

(1) The words fortasse, uicet, scilicet, and uicet, though they show no aberration in form, appear occasionally with verbal function, governing the infinitive, or being based on the collections given by Skutsch in his Forschungen, I, pp. 64 ff.

(b) Apocope:— With the exception of the statistics for forte, the figures in the following table are

BEFORE CONSONANTS OR VOWELS.

deinde	8	7
exinde	2	1
forte	13	29
inde and compounds ..	15	39
proinde	1	30

VII.—QUANTITY.

contra, Am. 217; elsewhere contra or contr(a). In Ps. 156 contra m(e) et, contra dein, Am. 1008, B. 967, exinde, Curc. 363, Ps. 680, Truc. 82, exin, Most. 227; exim, E. 49, Poen. 754.

forte, As. 794, Curc. 271; in Mil. 720 either forte or fort will scan. [With forte we may group forte fortuna, B. 916, Mil. 287; fortasse, before vowels 7, before consonants 13 times; fortasse, As. 493, B. 671; fortis an, Ps. 432 (A). Fortitan is not Plautine, as is shown by the metre in Ps. 432.] proinde before a consonant, Am. 973, emended by Skutsch. Similarly, apocope is found with the words nempe and quippe; and probably in a few other words, in scattered instances.

(c) Syntaxis:— antehac, always spondaic; 20 instances, see above, under V. dehinc, monosyllabic, 8 instances. dein, monosyllabic, Am. 1008, B. 967. dein, monosyllabic, 15. deorsum, see above, under IV, 2, b. eadem, see above, under II, 4. præ, monosyllabic, 6. proin, monosyllabic, 18 (19 in—Cist. 488 in doubt.

(d) Hardening:— divitiis, cretic, Trin. 865; in R. 93 we get divitiis, $\bar{v} \bar{t} i i s$, the only instance anywhere of such scansion of the word. In R. 1241 we find a similar adverb divitine, and in Mil. 503 the adjective divitiarum, $\bar{v} \bar{t} i i \bar{a} r u m$. nunc iam, spondaic, is required in Avl. 451, Capt. 266, E. 135, instead of nunciam; in Poen. 374, either form is metrically possible. For contra, Leo has suggested that quid iam should perhaps be scanned as a tribrach, quidiam; there are at least 18 instances of quid iam. NO. CLVII. VOL. XVII.

VI a. proinde, Am. 837; probably to be explained by the reading of D, propterea; cf. B. 612, propterea, abl. masc. (BCD), Truc. 256 propterea (A). In R. 414, proinde, quantity indeterminate. somniculosus, Am. 622, Capt. 227; cf. metuculosus, Am. 293, sa, Most. 1101. statim, Am. 239, 276 (E. 567 f), but the quantity is not indicated; Nonius says that in the sense of standing one's ground statim has long a. ter, B. 1127, cf. terruerit, Capt. 477; quantity indeterminate in Pers. 153, Ps. 705, 705 a. ne utiquam as tribrach, i.e. as two words, x advant, Mil. 1024 (anp.). prosperet? Ps. 574; see above, under VI a. proinde, Am. 837; probably to be explained by the reading of D, propterea; cf. B. 612, propterea, abl. masc. (BCD), Truc. 256 propterea (A). In R. 414, proinde, quantity indeterminate. somniculosus, Am. 622, Capt. 227; cf. metuculosus, Am. 293, sa, Most. 1101. statim, Am. 239, 276 (E. 567 f), but the quantity is not indicated; Nonius says that in the sense of standing one's ground statim has long a. ter, B. 1127, cf. terruerit, Capt. 477; quantity indeterminate in Pers. 153, Ps. 705, 705 a. ne utiquam as tribrach, i.e. as two words, x

Capit. 586, Mil. 631, Poen. 199; in Merc. 599 we may read either ne utiquam huius or neutiquam huius. Of the similar words neuter and cases and neutribi, we get in all 10 instances; in all 14 places ne u- is permissible (6 times without elision, 7 with), and in the above three places ne utiquam is required.

VIII.—PARALLEL FORMS.
